DETAILED ACTION

This is in response to Application filed on June 5, 2007 in which claims 1-10 are presented for examination.

Status of Claims

Claims 1-10 are pending of which Claim 1 is in independent form.

Drawings

1. Figures 11-14 should be designated by a legend such as --Prior Art-- because only that which is old is illustrated. See MPEP § 608.02(g).
2. The drawings are objected to as failing to comply with 37 CFR 1.84(p)(5) because they include the following reference character(s) not mentioned in the description: 530b and 510c. Corrected drawing sheets in compliance with 37 CFR 1.121(d), or amendment to the specification to add the reference character(s) in the description in compliance with 37 CFR 1.121(b) are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. Any amended replacement drawing sheet should include all of the figures appearing on the immediate prior version of the sheet, even if only one figure is being amended. Each drawing sheet submitted after the filing date of an application must be labeled in the top margin as either "Replacement Sheet" or "New Sheet" pursuant to 37 CFR 1.121(d). If the changes are not accepted by the examiner, the applicant will be notified and informed of any required corrective action in the next Office action. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1-3 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Okahashi (JP 09-157906).

Regarding Claim 1, Okahashi discloses a body member (1) made of a flexible fabric material for being worn on the feet (Para. [0012]); and an inner pad member (4B) coupled to an inside of the body member (Para. [0014]) for accommodation to an area where a heel is located when the heel protector is worn (Drawing 1), wherein both distal ends of longitudinal direction of the inner pad member are coupled to the body member, and two areas of the inner pad member accommodated to both lateral sections of the heel are coupled to the body member (Drawing 2 where only the perimeter is attached and is understood that 4B of Drawing 1 would be attached the same way), such that the inner pad member can relatively slide in relation to the body member when the heel protector is worn (Drawing 2 where excess material shown would allow for the materials to slide across one another and that 4B of Drawing 1 would be made in the same manner).

Regarding Claim 2, Okahashi discloses the body member (1) has a cylindrically bent shape (Drawing 1).

Regarding Claim 3, Okahashi discloses the inner pad member (4B) has a substantially oblong shape (Drawing 1), and each of the two areas coupled to the body member is a portion of a lateral distal end of the inner pad member (Drawing 2 where only the perimeter is attached and is understood that 4B of Drawing 1 would be attached the same way).

Regarding Claim 5, Okahashi discloses the body member (1) being provided with an elastic band at at least one of upper and lower distal ends (Drawing 1, where 1 is formed like an ordinary sock showing an elastic cuff).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Okahashi (JP 09-157906) in view of Sogawa (JP 09-310201).

Okahashi discloses the invention substantially as claimed above. However Okahashi does not disclose the inner pad member being cut in the shape of a "V" at both longitudinal central portions of edges. Sogawa teaches a heel insert, or "inner pad" (14), used for the same function as the Okahashi garment, with "V" shaped cuts (15) on both longitudinal central portion edges (Drawing 4A) to prevent excess bulk when attaching the side edges in a heel shape.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have replaced the insert of Okahashi (4B) with another well known insert, such as the one taught by Sogawa (14), as a simple substitution of one known element for another to yield the predictable result of protecting a wearers heel from injury.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Note the materials used and construction of the low friction sock in Bernhardt (USPN 6,108,820). Note the insert attached at one distal end to the inside of a sock in Abel (USPN 3,269,038). Note the use of an elastic fabric worn on the foot inside a sock in Hlavac (USPN 6,886,276).
